

CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS STRATEGIC STUDY GROUP SCIENCE FELLOW

The Chief of Naval Operations (CNO) Strategic Study Group (SSG) is soliciting strong social nominees for a two-year temporary assignment as CNO SSG's Science Fellow, with two available positions. The sole mission of the CNO SSG is the generation of revolutionary naval warfare concepts in response to the CNO's strategic leadership themes.

Fellows will gain valuable insights, new professional relationships and a wealth of experience working within high-powered teams to resolve complex global challenges. They will also benefit from an experience comparable to those found in the best graduate and business schools. They will have the opportunity to learn from, and strategize with, some of the nation's most exceptional leaders and thinkers.

Eligibility: Open to senior civilians in grades GS-12 through junior GS-15 or equivalent with backgrounds in engineering, physics, chemistry, computer science, biology, operations research or related disciplines.

Tuition: SSG is prepared to reimburse the Command for annual direct-charge salary costs; however, competencies must cover overhead and non-direct charges such as travel, relocation, and per diem expenses.

All nominees are required to electronically submit an application package by 14 April 2015 that must include the following items:

- Current resume/171 (or equivalent)
- Samples of published work

For additional information, or to submit application packages contact the Developmental Program Site Coordinator, at (301) 475-4111.
